As I prepare to depart for Uganda in the morning, I ask your prayers for the effectiveness of this trip. I also ask your prayers for Betsy as she begins her first treatment (oral medication) for her renal cell carcinoma. Jessica and Matt are temporarily living with us while awaiting to move into their new home on June 1; so, Betsy has not only her youngest daughter, but also her own registered nurse at that with her through these initial doses of treatment. Pray that any side effects will be minimal and tolerable.

The initial notice that I always send out are typically vague as I have learned that exotic plans always change. In fact, the first weekend has now become a church wide conference on cults and the occult. Pastor Brian Breland, who was my companion in 2011, taught on this subject but the church has grown and the impact of cults continues to increase in Uganda so I was asked to repeat this important teaching. Also, occult activity continues in Uganda, even to the point of child sacrifice.

I have also been asked to preach at the chapel service of African Bible University on May 22. So, as you can see I always expect the unexpected. Thank you all for your prayers. I will continue to update as always as connectivity in Uganda allows.

In His service,
Bob
